

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The present invention relates to a computer case comprising a body shell and a cover shell adapted to cover an opening of said body shell, wherein, while said cover shell being put on said body shell, at least one stop member located on

5 an inner wall of said cover shell adapted to stop against a stop member of each at least one springy retaining device of said body shell and to prohibit backward displacement of said cover shell relative to said body shell after engagement between a plurality of engagement devices of said cover shell and the corresponding engagement devices of said body shell.

10